THE 1940 ORACLE ANNUAL presents to its readers a picture of a modern Mid-western American high school, which like a mighty tree stands rooted in the past. Every loyal Bay View student feels the support of the history of his school, and his pride in that history imposes on him an obligation to attempt to live up to the record of those who have gone before. The traditions that they left were good because these traditions have for the past twenty-five years helped young people to make the adjustment from childhood to adult maturity, and as the cycle of life continues year after year, these traditions are still good.

But the world of 1940 differs from that of 1915 — however much human nature remains the same — and the school must change if it is to help young people to meet life as they will know it. This yearbook shows a school in the process of change, as it has always been, a school nourished by the past but not rootbound by it, a school following a middle course in educational methods, trying to keep the best of the old while it adds the best of the new.

Dear Roger:
So sorry I couldn't be more helpful in a certain love-affair, but I guess it's all forgotten now and maybe for the best.

On the very border of the campus of Bay View High School lies beautiful Humboldt Park, garden plot and playground for the community of Bay View. There in sunny spring weather one hears the splash of the oar, the whing of the tennis ball; there on still summer evenings, the strains of great operas; and there when winter comes, the merry voices of skaters brightening the happy hours after school is over, and before homework calls students once more to their books.

THE FRIENDLY

WELCOME OF RED BRICK AND SHINING WINDOWS

The

The history of Bay View High School for its first twenty-five years is largely the record of one man, Gustav Armin Fritsche, and like an enduring shadow of his life are the traditions that give individuality to his school.

He maintained that the old virtues should not die; that all property, whether it belong to an individual or to the public should be treated with respect; that a due regard for the rights of others should make it possible for high school students to live on friendly terms with the community; that young people should still honor their fathers and their mothers. He believed that not only in classwork, but in all the extra-curricular activities of the school, faculty and students alike should aspire to the perfection of detail that marks finished work. A daily assignment should be as conscientiously completed a task, an opera as nearly professional a performance, an annual as beautiful and comprehensive a book, as high school students could make it.

And because they felt that he believed in his teachings and practiced them in his own life, his students shared with him the strength of his convictions. The traditions that he left at Bay View are the shining expression of his personality, and since they live, he knows in his school a real immortality.

The Oracle Annual

Picture taking, writing, pasting, proofreading—all the work that makes a yearbook possible is over, and the 1940 Oracle Annual is ready for the signatures that will give a personal value to each copy. The editors and those who have assisted them hope that every student who reads this volume will find depicted in it the Bay View High School that he knows.

The story of the production of the 1940 Oracle Annual begins with the planning of the book last September and the taking of the first pictures, those of the "Nut Farm" cast, early in December.

Of course no book is possible without subscriptions, and the campaign to obtain them was planned on a cold January day when some fifteen live-wires met to consider the best ways to sell the Annual. "Let's Go Modern!" was chosen as the slogan early in the meeting, and the publicity was arranged to fit the slogan. And it did fit. Electrical transcriptions, actual recordings of previously staged programs were played over the public address system each morning, featuring parodies on popular songs. Afternoon public address programs, fifth hour rallies, and the traditional, though modernized, eighth hour homeroom skits rounded out a week of varied attention-rousing publicity. The drive was a success in two ways: well over seventy people had many hours of good, clean fun in staging it, and the campaign sold over two thousand subscriptions.

Came the days when class pictures were taken. In record time, an efficient crew of twelve divided over eighteen hundred students in groups and directed the taking of their pictures. The "P. A." system was used for the first time in calling classes to the auditorium, and much of the speed with which the entire schedule worked was undoubtedly due to its use.

RALPH NOWAK, Assistant Circulation Manager

HENRY FELLOWS, Circulation Manager

Pictures of club officers, of athletes, of teachers, and of graduates were taken almost weekly during March and April. Both editors and photographers found it amusing, after watching the principals in thirty or forty pictures a day, to view the different reactions of the persons being photographed. More than ninety percent insisted that they winked when the flash bulb was set off, and about ninety-nine percent refused to pose for a profile view. Despite all protests, however, hundreds of pictures were taken.

It has been a great deal of fun for those working on the Annual to see its progress through the many stages in its development, to see it actually taking shape from a foundation of mere ideas. It has been a source of strange joy to see pictures coming back from the photographers, cuts from the engravers, finished pages from the printers. The 1940 Oracle Annual has twice brought pleasure to those working on it, during its preparation, and now after its completion.

The members of the Oracle Annual staff hope that you who turn the pages of the book will derive the same pleasure in viewing it that they had in compiling it, and that the 1940 edition of the Bay View yearbook is worthy to take its place in the long line of outstanding Oracle Annuals.

May it bring students whose pictures fill its pages happy moments of recognition now, and in the years to come the mellow pleasure that attends revived memories.

Four years ago, when Oracle meetings were announced every other week, some of the more venturesome among the freshmen wandered in and waited hopefully for a chance to do something — just anything on the Oracle. In time opportunity came to them as it had to a long line of Oracle workers throughout the years. They too became star reporters, assistant editors, and associate editors. Finally, a few of them who had worked, waited, and hoped, became the newspaper editors of 1939 and 1940.

By that time they had learned to write news, features, editorials, headlines, and had perhaps even gone to the printers as messengers or helpers. But the thrill of responsibility still lay ahead.

Returning from summer vacation one week before the school year opened, Bettie and Marie Cross, Jack Kirby, George Rusteika, and Charles Zahn gathered school news, wrote the stories, headlined them, and completed the Oracle newspaper so that it could be issued three days after the session opened.

The Oracle campaign was introduced with a radio skit by Charles Zahn and the Cross twins, editors. The public address system was used extensively for the first time as a sales' medium. Daily radio skits and traveling troupes of singers, dancers, and entertainers made the campaign an acknowledged success. Then came the fascinating routine of getting the paper out.

Assignments to reporters, checking copy, writing headlines, taking pictures and laying out pages—all were the prelude to the best days of all when they gathered car checks, passes, lunch, wraps, and papers and went down to the printers. Once there, the staff numbered and proofread galleys, pasted pages, rechecked page-proofs, and then breathed a huge sigh of satisfaction as the Oracle was sent to press.

Duty, however, was mixed with pleasure in the Oracle Office and at the printers. Round-table discussions on subjects ranging from school gossip to the war were often held once the whirl of preparation for an Oracle issue was over and the Oracle was "put to bed."

After the twelve-page Christmas issue was distributed, several changes were made in the personnel of the staff. Charles Zahn, editor-in-chief of the newspaper, became editor-in-chief of the annual, and Bettie and Marie Cross became the first co-editors-in-chief of the newspaper in the history of the school.

With the close of the year, those who worked together on the Oracle newspaper start on their chosen paths, bound together by the memory of the fun they had in the struggle to produce a newspaper worthy of Bay View High school.

Boys' Club

Activity in the Boys' Club was set off to a fast tempo on October 5 with a musical. At the second meeting the newly formed subsidiary of the Boys' Club, the Hobby Club, was in charge of the program. Interesting demonstration talks were given concerning the features and merits of various hobbies.

The Armistice Day program, as usual under the sponsorship of Boys' Club, had for the speaker of the day Gilman H. Stordock, State Adjutant of the American Legion. On Dec. 7, a playlet was presented in East Study Hall by Edward Bardwell and company. The Girls' gymnasium was the scene of the annual Christmas dance held Dec. 15.

ON THE LOOSE

An athletic program, a part of which was the play-off of the Intra-mural Basketball Tournament, was given at the first meeting of the second semester. The All-Stars defeated the Cutter team to win the championship. The awarding of the Boys' Club trophy to the winning team took place at the following meeting.

On March 11, the Girls' Club was the guest of the Boys' Club at a joint meeting in the auditorium. At another meeting a short play, Rip Van Winkle, was presented by a professional impersonator. During the ninth and tenth hours on April Fools' Day the girls were again in the company of the boys, this time at the Annual Dance held in the Girls' gymnasium.

L. V. Boardman, sectional head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, spoke on May 2 of the activities of that organization. At the next two meetings, an educational movie and a musical program were presented. Election of officers on June 6 closed another year of successful Boys' Club activities.

It was a year that brought both to those who participated on the programs and to those who were in the audience, sociability, activity, and intellectual growth.

CIRCUS DAY

Girls' Club

"Strike up the band!" This was the command for Elaine Ewig, the drum major, to begin the Layem-Slayem Circus which was the climax of the year's program of the Girls' Club. A small brass band consisting of Girls' Club members led the performers down the center aisle of the Auditorium. Harriet Kaminski acted as barker of the circus.

Since "Rip Van Winkle" is a tale enjoyed by both young and old, the play version of it was presented at a joint meeting of Girls' and Boys' Clubs. The Boys' Club was the host to the Girls' Club.

The first semester brought Miss Elaine Astor who spoke to the girls on the subject—"Personality". Her many hints on charm and her advice concerning posture were practiced by the girls in the days following.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Climaxing the first semester was the annual senior girls' banquet held in the school cafeteria in January. Dorothy Smitka acted as chairman. A parody was sung by Florence Waga, acknowledging the work of the officers of the first semester and welcoming the newly elected girls. Both old and new officers received Girls' Club pins.

Girls' Club sponsored the annual Washington Day program. Student speakers for the day were Harriet Lambeck and Emil Grieshaber. The popular triple trio and also the Boys' Glee Club sang several numbers.

In keeping with tradition, a spring style show displayed Easter outfits. On April 5, a short play, "Betty, Behave!" was presented. Early in May the Girls' Club party was held in the gymnasium. Records played over the public address system were the source of music.

Concluding the year's program was the election of officers for the next semester. At the close of a variety program following the election, the club sang "Auld Lang Syne" as a farewell tribute to the June graduates of the Girls' Club.

AROUND THE WORLD

Dramatic Club

Various recordings were among the high lights of the first semester of the Dramatic Club. Transcribed upon the little platters, to be heard at will, are some musical numbers and a variety of dialogues and monologues which were recorded for the purpose of detecting faults in speech. The recordings were played at a later meeting.

An hilarious preview of "The Nut Farm", entitled "The Nut House on the Nut Farm", offered much opportunity for laughter. This presentation, directed by Mr. Owen, starred Chris Poulos as "The Mad Russian", Shirley Reynolds, tap dancer, and Edmund Kaja as "The Nut Who Thinks He's a Lot of Other People." Jack Kirby gave a convincing pep talk entitled "You Ought To See the Show."

The first semester closed with a one-act comedy—"A Christmas Chime" in which Ted Zalewski and Gloria Rechlicz, a young married couple, pick up the traditional bow and arrow and finally, after much embarrassment, succeed in reuniting two lovers, played by Harry Strehlow and Emilia Stayduhar. The play was directed by Miss Schwaab and prompted by Mary Kobus.

AT THE NUTHOUSE

Dramatic Club

An all-girl cast of Lorraine Wippich, Dorothy Johnson, Betty Ross, and Elizabeth Varga presented a play entitled "Joint Owners in Spain." The first part was given on the stage, the last was broadcast over the public address system to show the different tone qualities of the voices.

Dramatic Club led the other school organizations in the annual Homecoming Parade, with its members wearing costumes ranging in type from that of St. Peter to that of a cannibal.

The annual spring play, entitled "The Robbery", proved to be such an overwhelming success that a repeat performance was necessary to accommodate the large audience. The drama, which was enacted by Elaine Hilgendorf, Arthur Vollmer, Mary Ann Nordstrom, William Shimeta, and Frank Stayduhar was a fast stepping romantic mystery story.

Participants in the many different programs gained valuable experience in acting and in costuming as well as in directing and in writing plays and skits.

LINGUISTS

The entertainment which the Foreign Language club provided during the course of the year consisted of plays, comedy sketches, musical selections, and topics by students. The programs attempted to educate the students in the civilization and culture of the nations whose languages they studied.

Several outstanding programs were presented during the first and second semesters. A marionette company gave a puppet show entitled Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, which was a delight to the audience. Another professional group, the White Russian Choir, giving musical selections in several languages, was equally popular.

Miss Gloria Rodriguez, soloist with the Wisconsin College of Music, presented a program of foreign songs at the meeting held on September 26. One of the most fascinating motion pictures which has ever been shown before the club was the Romance of China, by Mr. H. White, a noted traveller and lecturer.

Foreign Language Club

Music played a prominent part in the success of the year's programs. Included among the musical numbers were vocal selections, violin solos, piano solos, and other instrumental contributions. Occasionally, community singing afforded the audience an opportunity to participate in the programs.

Informative discussion topics proved of interest during the year. Among these, a discussion of Quas, the humorist, and a dramatization of Immensee, by Theodore Storm, were presented. On another program, the Mexican Hat Dance, one of Mexico's most popular folk dances, was demonstrated.

The singing of Christmas carols and discussions of the Roman Christmas and of Roman games gave a holiday air to the program held on December 12. On another program there were presented colored slides on beautiful France and picturesque Mexico.

Although the Foreign Language club is a composite of the various language groups, occasionally sectional meetings are held by each department. The Saturnalia, an annual social event presented by the Latin classes, again provided an entertaining evening for all who attended.

The success of the programs for the year was due to the assistance of the advisor teachers and to the interest and the co-operation of the students.

Round Table

Round Table activities for the year began at a Columbus Day program with Mr. Ray McArthur, ex-president of the Junior Association of Commerce, as guest speaker. On October 16, the Round Table united with other school organizations to present the White Russian Singers.

The double observance of Thanksgiving gave Round Table the opportunity of sponsoring two programs. A broadcast over the address system on November 22, with microphones in the orchestra, in the band rooms, and on the stage, presented a radio playlet, "Thanksgiving Festival", a string trio, and the glee clubs. On November 29, the double convocation audiences were addressed by Mr. Phil Grau, radio commentator. A triple trio sang, and the senior orchestra played.

Round Table

A genial impersonator of Santa Claus, Robin Middlemas, delved into his bag at the Christmas program to dispense gifts to club members.

Student speakers at the Washington-Lincoln convocation were Emil Grieshaber who discussed George Washington as a man and hero, and Harriet Lambeck who gave an oration entitled "George Washington" by Henry Van Dyke.

St. Patrick was the theme at the meeting on March 14. Songs, readings, a dialogue, and a skit were presented. Loring Campbell, a magician-ventriloquist, appeared April 4 at a program sponsored by Round Table.

On May 6 the entire school joined with the Round Table in the observance of Arbor Day in the planting on the campus of an American elm in memory of Mr. Fritsche.

An Alumni program on May 17, a debate on May 23, and a Memorial Day program concluded the activities of the year.

The colorful activities of the Science Club for the first semester were a lecture on a tour through Europe by Emil Grieshaber, a demonstration of the arc furnace by Charles Phillips, an alumnus, assisted by Wilmot Gaulke, a film on the manufacture of safety plate glass, and a lecture entitled "Down to the Sea in Ships" by Jacques D'Albert.

During the first semester the general science groups visited the Milwaukee Journal building to tour the WTMJ Radio studios, and to watch the production of The Milwaukee Journal. The biology groups observed animal life at the Washington Park Zoo, and studied plant life at the Milwaukee Museum and in nature itself.

Chemistry students witnessed the making of different machines at the Vilter Manufacturing company and later made a tour through the chemistry laboratory, the brass department, and the assembly line of Diesel engines at the Nordberg Manufacturing company.

"Bill, what are you looking so happy about?"

"Well, our homeroom won the X Club plaque today. Did we have to work though to get it!"

The X Club plaques are given to the homerooms which have the highest scholastic standings in each semester group. The homerooms of Mrs. Kirchgeorg, Miss Lane, Miss Roberts, Mrs. Garling, and Mr. Sprunger received the plaques during the entire first semester of 1939-1940. Eight plaques are awarded each month.

"Youth is the time to learn" is the X Club motto appearing on all the honor plaques. Homerooms which received the plaques for one or two months were those of Mr. Bolanowski, Miss Kieckhefer, Mrs. Dulak, Mr. Stout, Mr. Kyper, Mr. Osterndorf, Mr. Whitcomb, Miss Statz, and Miss Oelhafen.

X Club

Activities of the X Club include tutoring pupils who desire help, studying requirements for college scholarships, and discussing vocational opportunities.

The club was organized in March, 1938, under the guidance of Miss Prucha. Students eligible for membership are those who receive an excellent each month. A semester excellent entitles a member to semester membership provided his average does not fall below eighty-seven. Consistent membership over a period of an entire semester entitles a student to wear an X Club pin.

Bud Waite, radio operator with Admiral Byrd, and his dog, were presented in an illustrated lecture sponsored by the X Club in January. In March, Alonzo Pond talked on his discovery of a prehistoric skeleton in Mammoth Cave, Kentucky, and showed colored slides of the cave.

Three life advisement plays directed by Miss Prucha, Rosemary Tanger, Arthur Vollmer, and Arthur Beyersdorf were given the second semester. The plays were designed to show the importance of good manners and good study habits. A skit depicting the activities in various clubs was also presented to the eighth grade pupils.

Announcers

This spring the Public Address System observed its first anniversary. The system offers a vivid contrast to the old one of monitors carrying messages from room to room.

The first broadcasts to the school were announcements from the office given by members of the faculty. Gradually the students, with faculty guidance, took over the announcing. Now, with a large staff of student announcers and four technicians, under the guidance of Mr. Lorentz, with elaborate sound effects, and with the use of phonograph records, the programs are very entertaining.

Speech teachers choose the student announcers on the basis of their ability. With the co-operation of speech classes these announcers have increased the variety of the programs.

Because of marked progress in only one year, the Public Address System will become, no doubt, one of the most outstanding activities in the school curriculum.

Last fall the old system of choosing ushers at random for school presentations was abandoned for a corps of ushers organized to serve at all public performances. It is the work of these boys to see that the large audiences attending public performances are properly seated and courteously treated. Since an usher serves at the same position each time, he is able to learn the job well and to avoid repeating mistakes.

The corps is divided into two groups which function on alternate evenings, each group headed by three captains, one for the balcony and two for the main floor. The squad has elected a president, a vice-president, and a secretary, has adopted a constitution, and will later devise rules to govern absence, tardiness, and other irregularities. The club has decided to present short plays and skits from time to time in order to raise money to buy uniforms.

Art Club

This year a new system of membership in the Art Club was instituted. Not only students of the art classes but also all those interested in art were admitted to membership in the club.

Sketching was the program for most of the meetings, Mr. Tillotson assisting those new members not familiar with this art.

At one of the mid-semester meetings a number of the students, accompanied by Mr. Tillotson, took a trip to the Milwaukee Art Institute where the Bauhaus Exhibition was being shown. At Bauhaus, Germany, the students learned that ultra-modern furniture was developed as early as 1920.

The outstanding event of the second semester was the Art Club costume dance, March 15, the theme of which was St. Patrick's Day in Dogpatch. It was carried out in the costumes worn, in the square dances, and in the murals and decorations in the gymnasium. The success of the first dance ever held by the Art Club was assurance that more would be held in the future. The entire year for the club was one of real accomplishment and pleasure.

Stage Crew

When a dancer loses a heel of her shoe, or a curtain sticks and refuses to open, or a fuse blows at an inopportune moment, the show still goes on—the Stage Crew is on the job!

Not only for school performances, but for all school clubs the Stage Crew gives its full co-operation. If scenery needed for a special program is not to be found in the scenery racks, the stagehands go to work with saws, hammers, wood, canvas, and spray guns to build the desired set.

This year for the first time, the Stage Crew tried a system of co-managers to give recognition to members of long service and to provide adequate leadership at all times. Mr. Weller is faculty advisor of the Stage Crew, Mr. Barta has charge of properties, and Mr. Lorentz directs the use of the public address system.

"The Nut Farm"

Bob Bent has sold his business in New Jersey for $30,000 and has come to California where he plans to buy a nut farm. With him live his wife Helen, her mother, and her brother Willie. The purchase of the farm seems doubtful until a scheming film producer, a writer, and an actor begin to make screen tests of Helen and to talk of finances to Bob.

Easily convinced of her remarkable acting ability and great beauty, the movie-struck Helen persuades her husband to finance the picture in which she will then star.

Willie, seeing through the plot, becomes discouraged when his warning words go unheeded and allusions to his personal failure are made. He decides to leave, but Agatha Sliscomb, with whom Willie is in love, persuades him to stay and make a last attempt to save his family from ruin.

Willie stays, directs the picture, and then, with the enterprise apparently a failure, he disappears. After four days Willie proudly returns with a check for Bob, and with a job plus a wife, Agatha, for himself.

Agatha then explains how Willie has recut the picture, changed it to a comedy, and sold it for $80,000.

PINK-SLIPPED JOAN

In keeping with Leap Year, Bay View presented "The Bachelor Belles", a musical comedy, on May 3 and 4.

Mrs. Page, a widow, owns a ranch, but has difficulty running it until her son Ernest returns from college. He brings with him Glenn Rhodes, a farm advisor, and Dr. Sage, a professor who solves the labor problem by importing co-eds to take the place of the farm hands who have been induced to leave by the villain, Mr. Pennypacker. Ernest falls in love with Dianne, a co-ed, and in turn, their romance brings about the courtship of Dr. Sage and Maizie, another co-ed. With the aid of the farmerettes, Mrs. Page is able to outwit Mr. Pennypacker who finds solace in Emmeline, the gawk.

Unusual dances, a novelty skating act, together with clever songs, gave color as well as harmony to this operetta, another excellent Bay View production.

THE SENIOR BAND

The Band

Under the direction of drum majors Albert Luetzow and Theodore Buenger, the marching band added color and spirit to the football games. Its precisely executed formations, alone and in combination with other bands, gave many thrills at the gridiron battles.

At the first double Music Festival in the history of Bay View, January 12 and 13, the symphonic band, directed by Mr. M. D. Williams, played Morning, Noon, and Night in Vienna and Overture Hongroise, the latter written by Mr. Joseph Skornicka. Earl Goetzinger and Walter Moeck, soloists, and Raymond Bernauer, arranger, were featured on the program.

Fifteen soloists and ensembles entered the Eastern Wisconsin Music contest on April 27. In the tournament for bands and orchestras held on May 11, the band used the Florentiner March to warm up and then played Siegfried's Rhine Journey and Scenes in the Sierras.

STAR PERFORMERS

THE SENIOR ORCHESTRA

The Orchestra

The Senior Orchestra, composed of sixty-three members, was not only complete, but exceptionally well balanced this year.

At the January Music Festival, two capacity audiences enjoyed the variety of moods presented in the overture to Hansel and Gretel, the southern mountain rhythm of Cripple Creek, and the brilliant finale of Dvorak's New World Symphony. Ruth Piacentine's artistic rendition of Mendelssohn's Concerto in G Minor, however, was the climax of the performance. According to the music critics present, the orchestra displayed exceptional coordination in the accompaniment.

Each member of the string sections gained experience in solo work, since Wednesdays were set aside as solo days. A string trio and two string quartets were formed which played for programs in school as well as for activities outside of school.

Either in part, or as a whole, the orchestra participated very prominently in school and public performances during 1939-1940.

Football

The 1939 ball toters went through the first stages of re-building—scoring no victories, and only 13 points, but getting valuable experience. With a splendid defensive machine, but very little offense, the best that the Viewites could do was to keep the scores of their opponents extremely low in all games.

Bay View—North—The first conference game showed plainly that the weakness of the Meyermen lay in their lack of aggressiveness. In the second quarter a series of beautiful air connections from Radick to Tammi brought the ball to the blue and white 24-yard line, where an attempted field goal by Skelding fell short of its mark. This was the best that the Viewites could do towards a tally.

Bay View—Lincoln—Punts by Radick and Skelding helped the Bays out of many a hole and gave them hope on numerous occasions, but the offense of the blue and gray eleven proved to be too powerful for successful resistance. Laterals and a few successful "popeyes", which they learned from the Bays of '38, were largely responsible for the opponents' march down the field early in the third quarter.

DEFENSE

Bay View — Custer — Bay View's annual homecoming game, although it was against their weakest foe, was a sad disappointment to Viewite fans. Luzich's recovery of a fumble on Custer's 40-yard line temporarily safeguarded the Meyermen from a six point handicap.

Bay View — Rufus King — The Kingmen, though inexperienced, had the necessary zip to scamper through the Bay defense. By means of clever passes and end runs the Viewite eleven fought their way to within a few yards of the enemy goal, where Radick went over to score the first touchdown of the season. Skelding's place kick for the extra point was good.

Bay View—Boys' Tech—Before the bewildered Boilermakers even touched the ball, the Viewites had, through a series of five first downs, already scored six points. Skelding's attempt to convert the extra point was blocked. Tech soon scored seven points, however, and during the last five minutes of the game the Trojans doubled their count.

Bay View—South—A brief relapse in the Bay defense was all that the Redmen needed to carry the oval to a touchdown early in the first quarter. Brilliant playing by Chandek, Radick and Kaczmarek prevented further injury to the Bays' pride.

Post season honors came to Frank Chandek, who was named center on the second All-City team, Joe Luzich, who was chosen the Viewites' most valuable man, and John Radick, quarterback, and Jerry Skelding, fullback, who were elected co-captains.

The Bay View cagers tied with the North Division quintet for fifth place in the city conference standings with four victories and seven losses in competition against the city high-school basketball teams.

They won the games played with Hartford, East Division, Juneau, Custer, and Rufus King. They lost to North, South, Pulaski, Washington, West, Lincoln, and Tech.

The Hartford game, which was a preconference tilt, was an easy victory for the Viewite squad. It showed what snappy floor work and co-operation could do for the newly-revamped team.

The Nelsonmen's successes this year were largely due to team-work and improved accuracy in shooting. Among the outstanding accomplishments was an upset victory over East Division in an overtime game. In the closing seconds of this contest, Seri pulled the game out of the fire by sending a hook shot through the hoop to give the victory to the red and black. The Bays, although they went down before the Washington onslaught, scored more points against that undefeated aggregation than any other school made in the conference games.

Newcomers to the Bay squad received valuable experience in the initial clash of the year with the Juneau men. This was the first victory in the drive to pull Bay View from the lowly position of recent years. The Juneau triumph was followed in rapid succession by two other conquests. The first was a win over Custer, when Seri made a basket in the last 25 seconds to break the tie and foil the hopes of the Redmen. The wave of victory continued when, in the following week, the much-vaunted combine from Rufus King fell a prey to the Bays, who by a series of passes and quick dodges, stormed the hoop and won the game by a one-point margin.

Grochowski broke the tape in the city half-mile event for the third consecutive year, being clocked at 2:04.4.

State Meet—1939—In the state meet, Bay View tied with two other schools for a fourteenth place, with a total of five points. Gene Grochowski, red and black half-miler, earned the Bay tally when he easily won his pet event in the fast time of 2:04.

Dual Meets—1940—The opener of the season was against the Cudahy Meatpackers on April 20, and was won by the red and black squad in true Bay fashion. The Viewites garnered 77 points, taking eight firsts and a slam in the shot put.

April 23 saw the Bays playing host to the Pulaski cindermen, and disappointing their guests, with a 63-50 win. Zentner ran a 2:04.8 half mile.

South Side Championship Meet—Tech, 80; South Division, 77; Bay View, 47. The first loss of the season was suffered when the Mattheimen were forced to succumb to the superior strength of their rivals in the field events. Pedersen, the defending champion in the 120-yd. high hurdles, broke his own mark by winning the race in :15.9. Zentner won the 880 in 2:05.3 and Radick conquered the 220 yd. lows.

Waukesha Relays—1940—For the first time in many years the Mattheimen failed to bring home a trophy from the "Land of Many Springs." The Viewites finished in ninth position with a total of twelve points. A second in the 480-yd. high hurdle relay was won through the efforts of Radick, Skelding, Nelson and Pedersen. Christianson, Riersgord, Hobena and Zentner managed to obtain a fourth in the two-mile relay, which has favored the Bays with two trophies in the previous two years.

City Meet—1940—Scoring thirds in the high and low hurdles and the half-mile, the Mattheimen finished eighth in the annual City meet. Pedersen, Radick and Zentner accounted for the thirds, while Hobena picked up a fifth in the mile, and Luedke tied for a fifth in the pole vault.

Cross Country

Although contending with a tough schedule and with only one returning letterman, the Bays, by their splendid fighting spirit, upheld the good record of red and black hill and dalers by winning six out of seven dual meets, and placing well in the upper brackets in the three big meets.

Dual Meets—A 24-23 victory over South Division launched the season in fine style on September 22, 1939. Westphal and Hobena tied for first place in this meet.

The 1.8 mile Pulaski course was the scene of action on September 29, as eight Bay harriers scampered to the finish line well ahead of their closest foe. The score was 15-55.

The highly over-rated Purgolders were next to taste the bitter sting of defeat at the hands of the Mattheimen, who again were led to victory by Westphal and Hobena, who tied.

In the Cudahy meet, at Cudahy, Hobena set a new record of 10:38 for the Sheridan park course, leading the Viewites to a 22-36 win.

The Bays' Waterloo came on Friday, the thirteenth of October, when they played host to East Division. The Orangemen won with a 31-24 tally, thus snapping a long string of red and black dual victories. In this meet Hobena of Bay View set a new Humboldt park course record of 10 minutes, 47.2 seconds.

Easy victories over West Division and Juneau completed the dual season for the Bay thinlies later in October.

Mid-Year Class Commission

The class commissioners collect the class dues, decide upon the class gift, prepare the commencement programs, and plan the senior party.

Sylvia Knutzen and Donald Palmer constituted the entertainment committee for the class party. The gymnasium under their charge was gayly decorated in approximately two thousand yards of black and red streamers, each one secretly associated with a canopy of balloons. Said Donald: "The amount of air in those balloons would equal that in a typhoon blowing over Florida." A floor show was presented and included Eugene Kotlarek, outstanding tap dancer trained by our own Robert Morris; Arthur Miller, vocalist; and Melvin Ries, acting as Master of Ceremonies.

Wallace Hofmann's special duty was to see that the dance programs were made. This included comparing paper of different companies as to the quality and price, designing the covers, and scheduling the dances, the Sadie Hawkins number being a Leap Year contribution.

Ruth Heidtke was Chairman of the refreshment committee, and the fruit punch and cookies have never been better.

James Santilli spent the greater part of his time collecting dues.

What does it mean to wear a medal? It means that scholarship has been achieved, that the student has been an upright citizen, that service to the school has been generously given. What do we mean by service? We mean to give time and effort willingly to various activities: announcing, singing, dancing, acting, creating, ushering, and being "faithful in little things". Such is the meaning of Bay View's gold, silver, and bronze medals, and such is the meaning of the "W" Medal, of the Civic Music Association Medal, and of the American Legion Medal.

June Class Commission

Climaxing their high school career, five students were elected to serve as commissioners for the June 1940 graduating class; namely, Charles Zahn, Jack Kirby, John Clemence, Jane Anderson, and Ellen Knueppel, all outstanding in extra-curricular activities as well as in scholastic achievement.

Charles Zahn, Jack Kirby, and Jane Anderson were outstanding in Oracle work in 1939-1940 — Charles, as editor-in-chief of the bi-weekly and of the Annual; Jack, as news editor and associate editor; and Jane, as literary editor. Both Jack and Jane held major offices in the "X" Club.

John Clemence, a basketball enthusiast, was the only representative of athletic activities. He held the presidency of the "X" Club in 1940 and also served as treasurer in the Boys' Club.

Ellen Knueppel represented various club activities, having been president of both the Girl's Club and the "X" Club, secretary of the Round Table, and co-manager of the Science Club.

Dear Fellow Classmate:

The duties of the advanced world with all its major problems have befallen upon the shoulders of the young generation. It is our duty to overcome & to improve the problems so that we may live in a world with the best comforts & joy of life. It does not mean however we must give up all our present day joys in order to unite & work together, all I ask is one thing lay off the women until you are more ably fit & that you have more brains. Keep up the airplane business, but not too hard.

A kindly tip from a
Emil F. Zortz

IT IS GIVEN to few teachers to know that for over thirty years they influence the life of a student. But back in 1904 a teacher at South Division High School was instructing a boy in the rudiments of German grammar and giving him his initial training in public speaking and debating. The association begun then was to continue through the changing years that were to see the man become principal of Bay View High School and the boy a member of the faculty and finally vice-principal.

When death came to Mr. Fritsche in October, 1939, the Board of School Directors of the Milwaukee Public Schools appointed the boy whom he had trained, the friend with whom he had counseled, acting principal of Bay View High School.

Through four years of their life between the ages of thirteen and eighteen, young people live in their community high school during six hours of every school day. For life in those years the school of today aims to provide a rich environment with opportunities for vital experiences that have intrinsic value now and that also prepare for successful living in some future life.

In the present-day school the curriculum in English is a process of living, offering purposeful activities for intelligent learning. These are the direct activities of reading, writing, and speaking, and the indirect experiences that come through literature.

The modern English class in action presents a picture of informality and true-to-life situations as students master the art of communication through experiences. Boys and girls talk informally on serious subjects to acquire the courtesies and give-and-take of pleasant conversation. Perhaps six boys and girls before the class audience discuss a topic of general interest in the popular panel discussion or symposium. Again, several students interpret the lines of an original radio skit or evaluate a current moving picture.

In writing experiences with the motive of practical use, students of English learn to write effective social and business letters, report the minutes of a club meeting, or keep accurate records. Through these exercises the English class assumes the responsibility of imparting skills and forms of communication that meet the specific demands of the modern world in which young people will take their places.

Rich learning experiences come to students through creative expression. In oral or written exercises they translate into words the joy of sailing a boat on the waters of the lake, reproduce in verse the beauty and exhilaration of a spring rain, or justify their dislike of a new novel — not with the motivation of practical use, but for the pleasure of interpreting an experience and sharing it with the classroom audience.

To increase the effectiveness of expression in speech and in writing, the tools of writing and of instrumental grammar are presented informally and functionally. Pupils use the structural devices of the sentence to help simple thoughts expressed in simple sentences grow to the maturity of complex ideas expressed in complex sentences. They employ a clause or an infinitive phrase to provide interesting variety to expression or an effective beginning for a sentence. They practise the use of clear, flexible sentences, correct spelling, and punctuation to clarify meaning.

The present-day challenge to education that the schools must help the individual to understand himself and the society in which he lives is met in the English courses partly through the study of literature. Through literature the English program provides vicarious experiences in the personal and social problems that are met in the world outside. Every novel, biography, drama depicts the ways in which some characters have met the possibilities that life presents and reveals the influences that affect men's lives. The human experience, which is of first importance to the majority of students, gains the emphasis in the study of literature in high school today.

Under a broad and flexible curriculum that allows for individual differences of ability and recognizes pupil needs and social demands, young people today are preparing to meet the work and leisure of their life with minds well trained and characters well formed.

At no time has the Social Science Department occupied a more challenging place in the curriculum of the modern high school than it does today. Its problems in a world chaotic with strife are enormously difficult and searching for the student who seeks light through the darkness of the confused thinking of the day. At this critical time the way to a better world order and the solution of the unsolved riddles of social justice are fields of thought lying well within the Social Science Department. Herein the earnest student evaluates the past and ponders the future. He scrutinizes the purpose of man's life and his social organization in order to find intelligent standards for his own future, standards that will furnish a pattern of harmonious living in an increasingly complex world.

Foreign Language

Foreign language students are not absorbed in dull exercises. On the contrary, their newly chosen texts and supplementary readers supplied with visible vocabularies, idioms, and many interesting pictures introduce them to people whom they gradually begin to understand. Once launched in their land and traveling down its rivers or through its cities students acquire a new history and a broader knowledge of human civilization.

Language students have become interested in the many short wave and domestic foreign language broadcasts. Those students who have read music dramas have found the Saturday afternoon broadcasts of opera very enjoyable. An opportunity to hear the great dramas not in translation but in the original is being offered by the talking motion picture. Treasures are revealed to those students who study a foreign language. The Honorable Sumner Wells has said, "Language study is a means to an end rather than an end in itself."

The old dread of mathematics that was so prevalent among pupils of former years has been replaced in recent years by interest and appreciation.

The geometry student today understands the application of geometry as the basic principle in architecture, surveying, and designing. A great interest in mathematics has been stimulated by the universal popularity of aviation and some of the newer branches of engineering which have become the vocational goals of a majority of our young people.

For the student who displays mathematical ability a variety of new fields has been opened — radio and television engineering, air conditioning of office buildings, tunnels, and homes, and research in the realm of chemistry for synthetic substitutes for material used in everyday life.

"Hope for further progress in scientific matters will be well founded only when many experiments are brought together for the study of Natural History". — Francis Bacon

All the experiments necessary for the study of the various sciences are performed and discussed in the Science Department laboratories under the guidance of capable instructors. These experiments together with the knowledge gained from textbooks give the foundation necessary for further progress in the realm of scientific investigation.

The ever increasing opportunities in the many fields of science, such as television, the use of plastics, and the prevention of cancer are open to all who have the desire to make a contribution to science which will benefit all mankind. After the student has obtained a foundation in the fundamental sciences in high school, he can select his field of endeavor and can build upon this firm foundation.

Commercial Department

During the period of the depression, the whole economic system was thrown into a chaotic state. Lack of employment was one of the most noticeable evils; too many applicants were available for every position. This was true not only of many classifications of commercial work, such as selling, bookkeeping, secretarial, and stenographic positions, but it was also true of every occupation. Investigators and committees were appointed, studies and surveys were made, and a feeling seemed prevalent that the working methods used in the past were at fault.

Leaders in commercial education, like leaders in every group, felt the need of a thorough investigation in their particular fields to see where conditions could be improved. Attention naturally turned to the curriculum. As a result, a careful study is being made of the courses, subjects, and subject material.

The Commercial Department was founded and exists because a majority of parents demand an education for their children which will help them earn a living and which will be a benefit to them in the everyday problems of life.

The principal objectives that pertain to commercial subjects in varying degree may be classified broadly under these four major heads:

1. Personal Use: This includes the learning of such business principles, practices, and procedures as will be of practical value to the individual in the management of his personal or household business affairs, regardless of what his vocation may be.

2. Guidance: Within a definite subject of instruction guidance is of two types. The first is the information and experience gained by the student that will assist him in discovering his abilities and in planning his future program accordingly. The second is the opportunity afforded the teacher to observe the student's results and reactions in various kinds of work, and thus be in a position to counsel with him more effectively.

In introductory commercial subjects, the guidance objective for the most part is toward or away from specific fields. In advanced subjects, the guidance is chiefly within the specific field. A shorthand class would consider the different types of stenographic positions available; a salesmanship class would give attention to the variety of sales opportunities to be found.

3. Social-Economic Understanding: This objective means an appreciation of the scope, nature, and economic significance of various business activities, together with their contribution and relationship to the individual in his personal living and to the community life. In brief, it implies the general understanding about business that is of value from the standpoint of citizenship.

4. Vocational Skill or Knowledge: The development of specific vocational skills or knowledge will qualify the student for entrance into some definite type of business employment.

The objective, or combination of objectives and their relative importance, obviously varies for different commercial subjects. In junior business training and commercial arithmetic the major objectives among those outlined are personal use, guidance, and social-economic understanding.

Commercial Department

Elementary bookkeeping stresses guidance within the field of bookkeeping and accounting, and thus gives the student an opportunity to test thoroughly his possible interest and ability in the field. The personal-use and the social-economic understanding objectives are likewise important. Elementary bookkeeping also is preparatory for students who plan to continue with advanced bookkeeping.

Commercial law, commercial geography, and business organization are among the general commercial subjects that emphasize chiefly different aspects of the social-economic understanding.

For the definite business-skill subjects, such as shorthand, typewriting, advanced bookkeeping, office practice, and salesmanship, the central objective is definitely that of developing vocational skill or knowledge. To be sure, such courses include other aims of value to the individual; but the major objective is vocational.

An increasingly large number of students are electing various commercial subjects, particularly commercial geography, elementary bookkeeping, commercial law, business organization, salesmanship, and first-year typewriting as a part of their general education program. For those students, personal use and social-economic understanding are perhaps the predominant objectives although other objectives also may be significant.

Fine Arts

The art classes offer an opportunity for creative expression and, through the use of various media, experience in the application of art principles to everyday life.

Whether one is alone or in a group, music is always a happy solution of what to do with leisure time. Girls and boys, working in school and out in their small ensembles, provide themselves with many happy moments, and their audiences with excellent entertainment.

Physical Training

Through participation in physical education activities the student develops not only a healthy body but also an active mind. Sports and athletics challenge the individual to a competition in which, if he is to excel, he must have a co-operative spirit and well controlled emotions. This discipline of the emotions comes, in the physical training departments, not through disagreeable tasks but through happy recreation.

Household Arts

In the Household Arts Department along with patting cakes and baking pies students are learning to select and prepare properly the foods which nature has so generously provided.

The girls begin to understand the importance of carefully managing family finances and of wisely buying the food, the clothing, and the home furnishings. These are the things which make life satisfying. The future home-makers also learn to appreciate the relationship between the well managed home and the happiness of the home members. They recognize the value of building personalities which are an asset at home, in school, in business, and in social life.

These skills and appreciation in foods, in clothing, and in living are planned to give that invaluable asset of all good home-makers — a feeling of security.

Manual Arts

Just a pair of hands — they belong to a boy. They are still clumsy, untrained, inexpressive hands, yet to a great extent the future of their owner depends on them. The ability of the brain to judge is linked closely with the ability of the hands to do.

The moving forces of the Manual Arts work are to help train the hands, and to develop the mind through the disciplines of precise thinking, through judgment, imagination, craftsmanship, and ideals.

SERVING THE MAJOR INDUSTRIES

DIESEL AND STEAM ENGINES
AIR AND GAS COMPRESSORS
MINE HOISTS — SHOVELS
CRUSHERS — SCREENS
TRACK — MACHINERY

A survey of many of the major industries reveals the widespread use of Bay View made machinery. The production of much of the world's output of such metals as gold, silver, copper and iron is dependent on Hoists and Crushers from Nordberg. Power for industry and for public services is widely supplied by Nordberg Engines. Much of the maintenance required on railway track is done with Nordberg Machinery. Specially designed Nordberg Compressors serve the great chemical industry. It is to these and other industries that Nordberg has contributed much in the heavy machinery field.

My dear Roger!!

I simply couldn't find the other space, so I'll have to write here, you don't mind do you.

I certainly don't mind.
Do ^{you} remember the times you walked home with me. I certainly do and I always shall. Well, I can't use too much space. After all you do have a new girl friend now!! don't you.

But I still like you
Love
